

Pryde Family Travel Grant: Guidelines

This grant has been established in honour of the Pryde family and their friends as well as the friends and family of Sean Delaney, who have hosted The Sean Delaney Golf Memorial Classic since 2007, the year that Sean passed away from a severe allergic reaction. Since this time, more than $3.9 million has been raised for Food Allergy Canada, in support of food allergy research and education programs. This travel grant is being provided to assist students enrolled in medical or graduate programs in Canada.

How many travel grants will be awarded?

Up to two travel grants will be awarded, with a value of up to $500 each.

How will recipients be selected?

Eligible applicants will be entered into a lottery, from which two recipients will be drawn.

Who is eligible?

Eligible applicants must be:

- Enrolled in a medical or graduate studies program in Canada
- Attending an academic program or event related to food allergies
- Allied health professionals working with allergists in Canada
- Residents or fellows who have already graduated from medical school but are undergoing their residency training in a program certified by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada

This travel grant must be used to offset the costs of attending an academic program or event related to food allergies, such as a conference, workshop, semester abroad, or clinical placement program (i.e. this is not for tuition). Applicants must outline their reasons for choosing the program or event and the anticipated benefits of their participation in relation to their educational goals. This travel grant may only be received once. Children of Food Allergy Canada staff, board members, or consultants are not eligible.

How can I apply?

Please submit the following:

- A completed application form
- A paragraph (maximum 250 words) describing the academic program or event, your reasons for choosing it, and the anticipated benefits of your participation in relation to your educational goals
- A travel budget, listing event registration, transportation, accommodation, and other anticipated costs
- Proof of enrollment or letter of support from your Training Program Director or supervisor

Applicants will be notified of their application status by April 28, 2017 and funds will be transferred after receipts are submitted. Recipients will be expected to submit a short summary report (1 page) describing how they benefited from the event/program. This will be shared with the Pryde family. Funds must be used within 12 months of issue.

Please submit your application to Food Allergy Canada by April 24, 2017.
