

FOOD ALLERGY CANADA AND THE ALLEN FAMILY
PRESENTS

The Robyn Allen Leadership Award

The Robyn Allen Leadership Award recognizes a special person or group that exemplifies extraordinary leadership and dedication in the advancement of food allergy awareness and education.

The Allen family and Food Allergy Canada greatly appreciate the efforts of those whose work has resulted in a positive change in the health and well-being of people at risk of anaphylaxis.

About Robyn Allen

Robyn Allen sadly succumbed to an anaphylactic reaction in 1990, just months before her 16th birthday. A lack of awareness of the severity of anaphylaxis contributed to her death, and her parents, Marilyn and Bob Allen, have made it their mission to ensure that Robyn's story continues to be a beacon of awareness, encouraging others to strive to better the lives of those with potentially life-threatening allergies.

The Robyn Allen Award is given by the Allen family in appreciation to those who champion anaphylaxis-related causes through awareness building and influence change that impacts quality of life through improved policies, research, education, and advocacy.
